High Risk Care at IGO

The physicians at IGO are experienced in the care and delivery of the high-risk pregnancy. We work closely in consultation with the perinatologists at the University of California, San Diego. Their office is conveniently located in the Women's Center at Scripps Memorial Hospital, La Jolla. We also work with the Geneticists at the University of California, San Diego, in order to provide a full scope of counseling services. We partner with cardiologists, hematologists, and other subspecialists, as indicated, to provide the best possible care to our patients. IGO has on-site antenatal testing including ultrasound, nonstress tests, biophysical profiles and laboratory capabilities in order to provide convenient, comprehensive care.

Children's Hospital has a satellite unit at Scripps Memorial Hospital, fully staffed by nurses and neonatologists from Children's Hospital.

We work as a team with you and your family to provide the best care and best outcome in a high-risk pregnancy. We keep you informed about the most recent information and research so you have the tools to make decisions to optimize your health and the health of your unborn baby.
